

SIDNEY B. HARRISON CAUGHT IN VIRGINIA

spurred to his call and first told of the identity of the man at the door.

"Is Mr. Harrison in?" the detective asked the occupant of the house.

Knowing the detective had cornered his friend, Mayne responded: "I see."

Harrison was summoned from bed. He showed that he had been sleeping. It was by surprise, but he quickly recovered his composure and set up the claim that the Washington detective had come right to take him from the state of Virginia. The officers agreed with him.

At a conference with his counsel followed, and shortly before 4 o'clock Harrison was at police headquarters, where his arrest was recorded. During the brief conversation with the detective, it is stated, Harrison admitted that the information the officers received about his being in Pittsburgh shortly after his disappearance from this city was correct. He wrote letters to friends, the police learned, and it was in that way that his presence there became known.

Was Arrested in St. Louis.

Harrison also told of having been arrested by the police of St. Louis, and of having been released. The officers, presented in the descriptive circulars sent out by Maj. Sylvester was a picture of some man other than himself.

"That was the first time I saw one of the circulars," the prisoner stated.

He said he was in the moving picture business in St. Louis at the time of his arrest. Soon after he was released, he went to St. Louis. The police thought Harrison probably would go to the races in New Orleans or Mexico, but Harrison was silent as to where he went after leaving St. Louis. He also refused to discuss the question of the disposition of the funds he is charged with having embezzled.

At police headquarters Harrison gave his age as thirty-three years although he looks much younger.

"He looks like a mere boy," remarked one of the detectives.

Harrison told a Star reporter that he had no statement to make at this time. "I am not a lawyer," he remarked, "the less I will have to explain."

Asked if Miss Malone had accompanied him, Harrison answered in the negative. He said he had seen nothing of her since they were last in the office of the brokerage firm together.

May Be Awaiting Settlement.

The police think Miss Malone, who is alleged to have embezzled $8,000 of the money of the brokerage firm, probably is in an institution waiting for a settlement of the affair to be effected.

Harrison and Miss Malone disappeared the night of December 19, but it was not until about two weeks later that the brokerage firm appeared to the police and asked for their arrest. They had plenty of time to get across the continent or to some foreign country by the time the police were called in to make an investigation. Detectives Egan and DeLoe, who were assigned to the case at that time, were told that Miss Malone went to New York, and they soon learned that Harrison was in Pittsburgh.

Following an investigation of the accounts of the local office of the brokerage firm, Joseph E. Johnson, general counsel for the Carpenter company, visited the office of Assistant United States Attorney Ralph Glavin and swore out warrants for the arrest of Harrison and Miss Malone, and later the grand jury indicted the manager and his assistant. Before appearing to the court, Harrison and Malone for the company resorted to every possible means to protect the company from loss.

Representatives of the families of Harrison and Miss Malone were interviewed, but it is stated, money enough to effect a settlement was not offered. Bank accounts of the accused parties were looked into and it was found that Miss Malone had $1,178.75 to her credit, while the account of Harrison was only $6.91.

Civil Suits Instituted.

Civil suits were instituted against the alleged absconders and efforts were made by representatives of the firm to locate the securities that the defendants are alleged to have sold in order to raise the money they are charged with having embezzled.

Attorney Johnson, representing the brokerage firm, consulted Mrs. Harrison shortly after the manager disappeared. He hoped to effect a settlement with the woman, which would mean that criminal prosecution would not have to be resorted to, and the wife of the alleged absconder sought the services of Attorney DeLoe.

The day before Christmas an advertisement bearing the initials of counsel were inserted in a local paper, as follows: "S. B. H. Advise immediate return; return me home, preferably by phone, E. R. 14."

Christmas day passed without any word from Harrison. His wife became anxious about his continued absence, and the day after Christmas she inserted an advertisement as follows: "S. B. H. Please return; return me home, preferably by phone, E. R. 14."

It is believed the young man was then far away from this city and that he did not see either advertisement. Had he seen them, the police think, he would not have answered them. He knew at that time that the police were searching for him and he probably realized that any communication he might have with his relatives or friends might result in the police learning of his whereabouts.

WITHDRAWS HIS SUIT.

Tony Roberts and Wife Settle Complaint Involving $1,400.

Tony Roberts, who last Saturday invoked the aid of the District Supreme Court to recover possession of $1,400 which his wife, Modesta Roberts, had placed in bank in her name when he had entrusted it to her, today dismissed the proceeding. The wife accompanied him to the clerk's office and explained that the money had been surrendered to her husband and that everything was satisfactorily arranged between them. The couple have been married only five months. Attorney D. Edw. Clark represented the husband.
